We're helping home builders share files on their job sites

"The spec book for a custom home can be hundreds of pages long. This covers everything needed to finish the home, and items are constantly being updated. Keeping the specs current means reprinting paper copies sometimes several times a day and was a real pain to manage.

Now with JobSite.codes our workflow is so much better and easier. When changes happen, we can update the files in our office and they are instantly available on the job site for our trade partners. This has significantly reduced the chance of someone working from an outdated file.

Now the spec book doesn't walk away and everyone has access to the exact same files with the quick scan of a QR code."
